Financial aid programs are designed to supplement family resources by bridging the gap between educational costs and the family's ability to pay. One of the underlying principles is that it is the primary responsibility of the family, not the Federal Government, to pay for a student's education. A determination of independent status may be made by reason of unusual circumstance. Unusual circumstances, as defined by the Department of Education, are situations where the parent cannot be located or where an otherwise dependent student is a victim of domestic violence and is no longer residing with his or her parents.

The following are situations that will not qualify as "unusual circumstances" or that do not merit a dependency override:

- 1. Parents refusing to contribute to the students' education.
2. Parents unwilling to provide information on the Financial Aid application (FAFSA) or for verification purposes.
3. Parents not claiming the student as a dependent for income tax purposes
4. Student demonstrating total self-sufficiency.
