

Report a problem FAQs:

- I'm a Colorado citizen and I want to report a problem related to ARRA funds - what should I do?

Governor Ritter created the Colorado Economic Recovery Accountability Board (CERAB) to ensure that the state and local agencies that are directing funding do so with transparency, accountability and, ultimately, to the highest benefit possible. Colorado citizens who want to report a problem such as evidence of mismanagement of ARRA funds, a waste of ARRA funds, an abuse of authority related to ARRA funds a danger to the public health or safety related to ARRA funds can report the problem to the CERAB staff at 303-764-7718. A web-based capability is under development that will allow complaints to be sent to the Colorado Recovery Website.

- I work for a public or private employer who has received ARRA funds and I want to report what I reasonably believe is evidence of a waste of funds, gross mismanagement of funds, a danger to the public health or an abuse of authority related to the ARRA funds received by my employer – what should I do?

Employees of recipients of ARRA funds who reasonably believe there is evidence of gross mismanagement of ARRA funds, a gross waste of ARRA funds, an abuse of authority related to ARRA funds or a danger to the public health or safety related to ARRA funds can report potential ARRA violations without fear of reprisal by their employer. Section 1553 of the Recovery Act provides specific protections for employees of non-federal employers who receive recovery funds and who make such reports. For more information click here:
