

HLC: 34 Days and Counting...Did You Know?
October 15, 2013

Did you know that CMU students have global educational opportunities through options such as the International Student Exchange Program (ISEP), faculty-led international travel courses, and international expeditions led by the Outdoor Program?

Self-Study Report, Evidence Item 3B4-2: CMU promotes awareness of the multicultural nature of the world by providing opportunities for study abroad for its own faculty and students and by recruiting students from other nations to study at CMU.

- Since 2005, CMU faculty members have led 23 international travel courses to Europe, Asia, and Central and South America.
- Although CMU has just completed its second year of affiliation with ISEP, 14 students have studied in a variety of locations including Europe, Japan, New Zealand, and Central America, while 12 students have visited CMU from abroad.
- Since 2003, the Outdoor Program has led 19 international backpacking trips in which groups of seven to 12 travelers, including students, faculty, alumni, and the Program Director, gain insights into other cultures and environments around the world.
