In•tern

noun ['in,tərn]: ORIGIN early 16th cent. (as an adjective in the sense [internal]): from French interne (adjective), interner (verb), from Latin internus 'inward, internal.'

Do you know that you can earn 1-3 credits of English elective as an internship?

Here's how to get started:

1. Identify a workplace environment you would like to explore. Consider positions that will use the thinking and communication skills you are developing as an English major. Publisher? Law office? Newspaper? Non-profit organization? Local politician's office? PR firm? Government office?
2. Contact the particular business or public institution where you would like to work and ask if they accept interns, or ask our internship expert for advice.
3. Talk to Dr. Tiffany Kinney (tkinney@coloradomesa.edu) to find out how to turn your time as an intern into credits toward graduation.
