Some positions are delegated non-supervisory authority where agency management routinely relies on essential consultation when deciding broad, critical program or policy direction. These relatively rare and unique positions have a level of influence such that management decisions are not made without the position’s essential advice and counsel, as demonstrated by direct impact and consequences of failure on agency mission, finances, productivity, and constituents. This authority is not a function of longevity, outstanding performance, or service as a resource by virtue of being the only position or most knowledgeable person in the unit who performs this work. Additional information or supplemental forms may be required, along with this section.

Check the applicable category of staff authority. A written endorsement or delegation from agency management (division director or equivalent, or higher) is required.
