The Atlas National de France was the culminating achievement of over 100 years of French national surveying carried out by the influential Cassini family. There were, finally, 182 detailed maps covering all France. The 'authors' of the published version were Dumez and P.G. Chanlaire. A quarto version of the atlas was published first, in 1791, followed by the folio version two years later.

Biographical note. Regarding the Daily Sentinel origins: “Pennsylvania-born traveling salesman I.N. Bunting founded the newspaper in 1893 with partner Howard T. Lee.^[1] Walter Walker bought The Daily Sentinel in 1911 and ran it until his death in 1956. He left the newspaper to his son, Preston Walker, who served as publisher until his death in 1970. He left the newspaper to one of his employees, Ken Johnson, who sold the company to Cox Newspapers in 1979.^[2]

“James Kennedy served as publisher until 1985 when he went on to become chairman and chief executive of parent company Cox Enterprises, naming George Orbanek publisher.

“Orbanek served until his retirement in 2007, when Alex Taylor became publisher.

“In July, 2009, the newspaper was sold to Kansas-based Seaton Publishing Co., and a new Grand Junction Media Co. was formed.

“Jay Seaton became publisher of The Daily Sentinel and executive vice president of Grand Junction Media. His brother, Ned Seaton, is president. Their father, Ed Seaton, is chairman.

“The Seaton family can trace its roots in journalism back two centuries to the National Intelligencer in Washington, D.C., in 1812.

“Seaton Publishing is a family business based in Manhattan, Kansas, that publishes the daily newspaper in that city. It's associated with family-owned newspaper companies in Arkansas City and Winfield, Kansas; Alliance and Hastings, Nebraska; Spearfish, South Dakota; and Sheridan, Wyoming, in addition to radio stations in Manhattan, Kansas.” - Wikipedia

Grand Junction Newspapers – Prior to 1920 [Bound Periodicals]

The following bound editions of the Grand Junction newspapers [primarily the Daily Sentinel], ranging in dates between 1884 and 1919, are housed in CMU Tomlinson Library – Special Collections auxiliary storage room. These early Grand Junction Daily Sentinel bound editions are in poor condition and researchers would be advised to use the microfilm version for general research.

The publication title on the first issue of each volume is noted. Subsequent publications titles vary considerably – even though they are in the same bound volume. There seems to be several name variants used interchangeably – or perhaps other Grand Junction newsprint publications are bound with them.

Other bound Sentinels housed in Special Collections range between the dates of 1938 and 1963.
