

Cathy Casper

Poet

The endless talk of the comingling waters of Turkey Creek and the Eagle River inspired the poetry of Cathy Casper during the 25 years she lived in an old Victorian house perched on a cliff in Red Cliff. Now living in in the Clear Creek Valley, she works for the Denver Writing Project, gardens and performs poetry. Because flow is essential to life, she still finds her way to water, and water to her poems.