

Brandi Baquera

Brandi Baquera serves as program coordinator for the Colorado Master Irrigator program, bringing five years of experience in groundwater management to the team. Colorado Master Irrigator is a 32-hour course designed and run by a diverse group of local producers, professionals, and educators in the Republican River Basin. Based on the successful Master Irrigator program from the North Plains Groundwater Conservation District in Texas, Colorado Master Irrigator began its journey in 2019 and had its first class of 22 local producers and consultants successfully complete the course in the spring of 2020. The program is supported by grants awarded by the Colorado Water Conservation Board, local Groundwater Management Districts via the RRWCD, Colorado Water Center, and the Water Preservation Partnership.
